There is a definite opportunity for wishes to come true. This is a magical time. This season is ripe with possibility. Things that once seemed impossible are now possible. This is a time to suspend disbelief, doubt, and nay-saying. Cleanse spiritually to release old baggage we've been carrying around for the winter. This is the way to prepare ourselves for the coming blessings. If you insist on being pessimistic or skeptical, keep it to yourself. Don't infect others who could benefit from this time of grace and miraculous things. There is a huge blanket of compassion over humanity at this time. Our collective unconscious is ready to hands over the desires of our hearts if we allow it, through faith. This is a time when we will receive each other's blessings so we will have to connect with each other in order to exchange.

This season is ripe with emotionality and release; cleansing through tears. It's not at all bad.

It's an opportunity of gratitude or sorrow depending solely on your choice. You may owe yourself an overdue cry to clear out old things—cry and let it all go. You will be able to discern what is in your won heart by how easily you are brought to tears. There is great tenderness and vulnerability.

Again, not necessarily a bad thing... We're going to know what is really in our hearts by what makes us cry.

Gratitude is the name of the game. With the eyes and heart cleansed by the tears you will see just how blessed you are. Gratitude, grace, mercy, compassion for self and others—these are the themes that apply primarily for the season. In this season we pay attention to how we relate to ourselves and others.

We are able to fill our cup to overflow and spill over our blessings to share with others.

I advise you to let your passions lead you to who and what you are meant to be doing. You will be led astray if you follow someone else's passion. Do not be afraid of your own desires. For a period of time you may be standing alone in the midst of your truest desires, but

My Luminous Self

This is my ode to self love and acceptance.
My balance between ragged and lovely.
How I shine and how I stumble
How I overcome my fear and remain victorious

I invoke the seven circles of Grace
I invoke my sigil
I call my self by the breath of my sacred names
I pour water to honor the day
I keep the moon and sun as counsel
I love with my whole heart
I continuously reach for light
It is this that makes me luminous
One in Being with love, therefore Beloved.

Still shining in the midst of decay and dusts made of skin
Ash of incense long ago burned
Every doubt whispered Walking among the garbage and mistakes I make.
Trying to recycle wastes.
Hoarding replicas of the realms in my soul

Yet I am sacred even in profane times
I am ever what I choose and do I am reborn each morning to what haven or matrix I dial
Yet I am still luminous and hopeful anointed by the river of grace and thunderous fire
Small and vulnerable and flaw-seeking Same time priceless
by the inner head I carry
This is my offering to my being My Luminous Self manifest in this infinite moment.

your allies and people aligned with your visions will find you. This is a time to look forward to new relationships coming into your life. You will meet people who reflect the truths of who you are becoming. Standing for what you believe in is paramount this season, but you won't truly know what that is until you cleanse and get to the heart of you. You cannot be satisfied standing up for someone else's convictions; someone else's truths. Once you shift to who you really are, there will be a shift in who and what comes into your life.

When old relationships threaten to fall away, say "thank you" and let them. This includes your visible and invisible support system. Pay attention to who has your back, who is truly in your corner, who aligns their energy for your highest good. Be more decisive and honest about what you want from your relationships.

During meditations this season focus on looking forward, not looking back. Explore new and uncharted territory and use your divine creative imagination. Engage in dynamic medication that include body and mind such as knitting, walking, dancing, and other repetitive motion activities. It is beneficial to achieve a meditative state in an instant. Build the discipline of receiving messages from your soul and higher power through "tuning in" in the moment. Answers are coming quickly, be at the ready. We're being called upon to connect with ourselves and others so listen to your soul in all activities to know the best and blessed interactions that bring good to you this season.

We can hear the "still small voice" asking us to do and be about our passion. There's a move of the Spirit and we need to be about living our passionate callings. This is the prime moment don't miss it. These next 6 weeks we will be inundated with opportunities. Let's have the eyes to see them and the heart to hear them so we can make the most of all that is for us.

The opportunities are within us and within our chosen circle of interaction; our immediate relationships. Use inner guidance to deliberately be in the right places at the right time to make connections.

Ask for whatever you want. Ask and keep asking. Be joyful about what you want. Ask from the place of joy of your deepest desires.

Never let your desires cause internal pain. Let the heart, the joy, the imagination, and the fire of the will create your deepest dreams and wishes. Miracles come true; made manifest by you. Embrace the "Energy is the currency of the universe. When you "pay" attention to something, you buy that experience. So when you allow your consciousness to focus on someone or something that annoys you, you feed it your energy, and it reciprocates with the experience of being annoyed. Be selective in your focus because your attention feeds the energy of it and keeps it alive, not just within you, but in the collective consciousness as well."

emotional manifestation of what you desire, and its physical counterpart is not far behind. Kwan Yin comes to help us reconnect with what we truly want in our hearts and heal the disappointment that has made us bury them. This is the time to break down the walls we've built to protect ourselves from disappointment and hurt. ~

Breech Birth?

If you'll recognize that you've been moving through the hallway of transition backward instead of forward, you will finally be able to say goodbye to those things, people, and realities that are no longer beneficial. The law of attraction works both ways. Your desired future has been courting you like a lover; trying to make itself as delicious and inviting as possible. Face forward, and move toward that which has the strongest pull for you.

When you accept that you have indeed been traveling through the birth canal of transition, you'll come to realize that your transformation is part of a larger experience that involves many more components than you ever imagined. What awaits you is a radically new, unprecedented, life-altering reality that transcends your logical mind. You'll know it's God because it will be something you have personally never conceived of, exquisitely orchestrated; its impact so far reaching that you'll wonder what you've been doing 'til now.
